SAVE THE DATE: International Newspaper Group (ING) 2020 Leadership Networking Summit at the London House Chicago, September 18th and 19th

CHICAGO, Illinois – The only professional conference devoted exclusively to advancing the effectiveness, productivity and profitability of newspaper operations is launching its 2020 edition of the ING Leadership Networking Summit with a SAVE the DATE message to urge every newspaper operations executive in North America and Europe to start arranging now for their attendance.

The ING board of directors is pulling out all the stops to spark newspaper home offices, CEOs, CFOs and other ‘keepers of the coin’ to encourage and endorse their operations leaders’ participation at the ING 2020 Summit in Chicago this coming September. The ING board is looking to top the organization’s record-breaking attendance in 2019 with “a program this year that will absolutely, positively build on the momentum of success — by promoting leadership, excellence, innovation, involvement and recognition in print, distribution and our associated industries,” according to Mark Hall, ING President, and a Regional Operations Director at Postmedia Network, Inc., in Toronto, Canada.

Paramount to newspaper operations executives’ success toward improving their newspapers’ performances are leadership skills and techniques to build better team cooperation and staff support.

The ING 2020 Leadership Networking Summit will be held at London House Chicago at the corner of exciting, famous Michigan Avenue and Wacker Drive, on the Chicago Riverfront. Beautiful accommodations with special, discounted rates for Summit attendees and sponsors complement this 'DO NOT MISS' event at a terrific time of year in Chicago.

More information about the ING 2020 Leadership Networking Summit including registration for newspaper operations executives, vendor sponsorships and other event details can be found at InternationalNewspaperGroup.org.
